

Because Year-end Holiday Seasons' Demand Has Risen and Panel Capacity Shrank, in Sep. Prices of Some TV Panels Were Reduced Their Drop Scale and Might Stop Falling, Says TrendForce

2019-10-04 Iris Hu

WitsView, a division of TrendForce, its latest survey pointed out that TV panel prices had significantly dropped for 4 consecutive months since May. Prices of more than half of size segments have lowered to below cash costs.

The 32" panel price fall scale has shrunk, and might even stay flat in the short term

The number of suppliers for 43" panels increased, so its price is hard to stabilize

During the peak season, demand to large-sized rose, so the price fall scales of the 55" and 65" were narrowed
